

THIS LITTLE PIGGY WENT TO PRADA

Good buys

This week in the shops

Poets corner

Billed as the ultimate gift for yummy mummies, what This Little Piggy Went To Prada (£13, Spy Publishing) lacks in depth -- and we're not just talking dimensions here -- it makes up for in witty panache.

Its collection of fashion-subverted nursery rhymes ("Pussycat, pussycat where have you been? I've been to London to see McQueen.") and whimsical illustrations should entertain anyone who lives and breathes couture.

Splash it all over

His grandfather founded Dior but Frédéric Malle has been busy releasing some pretty hot fragrances of his own. His latest, a warm but delicate winter musk called l'Eau d'Hiver (£55, tel: 020 7730 2322) is the first per on ov

ap out ner.

THE INDEPENDENT ON SUNDAY • 6 NOVEMBER 2005

THE SUNDAY REVIEW

THE INDEPENDENT
ON SUNDAY
6 NOVEMBER
2005